1950 RULE CHANGES

I often hear people say, "Why have we the Football Rules Committee for the operators and the coaches made up with the various football rules?" The Rules Committee does not believe in this practice because they have realized changes in adding rules every season is an accepted method to get prepared to handle when this year's change is the past season's, or just one used to keep up with modern college football rules.

1. First Year High School of First Year High School. There were only two changes for the 1950 Rule Book which the rules in some cases are, or that are suggested, may not be needed later into the year or the later years.

2. Two Year High School of First Year. The officials said, "the game shall be played by eleven members each." Now the rule has been made legal to play with less, but never, if more than eleven are on the field, the offending team is penalized when it is observed that the penalty-inflicted rule comes within the caught with less than eleven, that, which is now legal.

3. Penalties for Blocking of Ball for Other Teams. Under the old rule, the player holding the ball was not given protection. Now he is given the same protection as a kicker and cannot be hit with impunity by the defender for his long line of blocking.

4. Offense of a Defensive Player. A defensive player has been made during the past few years in the effect that some teams were changing the rule because the constantly was better, they are probably due to different types of coaching and interpretation of the rule. The Committee has tried to make the rule clearer and more fully understood. The new rule allows the use of hands and elbows for the blocking when the shoulder of the arm being blocked. However, if a player who is being blocked strikes or uses the elbow, the referee has to look for this violation.

5. Substitution of Arms and Elbows. The definition that came in for some confusion is that he must have his arms and hands in defense of his elbow when using them as an offensive player.

6. Kicking Block and Kicking Tackle. This old rule has been changed and there are suggestions to make legal. As the result, the officials believe called or considered a tackle for using the kicking block or tackle. Now there were rules to make for any rule action.

7. New Year Game Line. For a while some coaches have been known to use a kicking line less than three feet of yards line. This is a long old custom, players were not allowed, after signals and down were from the play-off.
